ONE KIOWA WOMAN KILLS ANOTHER

Kiowa, Okla., Aug. 21.—Mrs. Lena Shoemaker, divorcee and the mother of three small children, lies at her home here Wednesday night the victim of two bullets from a gun in the hands of Mrs. A. L. Turley of Crowder City, wife of the man for whom Mrs. Shoemaker formerly worked. Mrs. Turley accuses Mrs. Shoemaker of undue intimacy with her husband and stealing his love from the wife.

Mrs. Turley came to Kiowa Wednesday evening at 4 o'clock and went immediately to the home of Mrs. Shoemaker, where, in the presence of the three small children, she made the allegations against her and without giving a chance to deny them whipped out a revolver and fired three shots, two of them taking effect, one just above the heart and the other in the thigh.

Neighbors attracted by the shots gave the alarm and Constable W. H. Williams arrested Mrs. Turley, taking her to McAlester where she was placed in the county jail pending the outcome of Mrs. Shoemaker's wounds. Surgeons say she has no chance to recover.

A. L. Turley, husband of the woman who did the shooting, runs a cotton gin at Crowder City and Mrs. Shoemaker was employed by him as bookkeeper last fall. She moved to Kiowa afterward and it is said that Turley visited here frequently since that time.

NEW COUNTY FIGHT IN WESTERN OKLAHOMA

Lawton, Okla., Aug. 22.—A decidedly bitter fight for the division of Comanche county closed Wednesday night and Thursday at a special election, will be indicated whether the proposed Cotton county will become a separate division of Oklahoma. Indications Wednesday night are that the vote will be very close and both sides are very confident of winning.

The campaign committee of the proposed new county yesterday charged that an insufficient number of ballots had been distributed to certain precincts and an order was secured from the secretary of the state election board that about 200 more should be sent to a few precincts.

The anti-divisionists are confident their entire vote will be cast and are arranging to use a number of automobiles in getting the voters to the polls. The long, spirited campaign has aroused the voters and few will stay away.

Lawton has been the headquarters of the anti-divisionists while the campaign in favor of Cotton county has been conducted out of Walters. Political representation of the different sections of the county, the benefits of taxation, cost of county government and many other things have entered into the campaign.

Lays Bare Source of Part of Campaign Funds—Teddy Knew of Standard Oil Contribution.

Washington, Aug. 21.—Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania hit back at his foes today and unfolded a story about the corrupt character of the republican slush fund of 1904, such as the campaign fund investigation committee with all its subpoenas, power and questions has not been able to extract from the failing memories of Chairman Cortelyou and Assistant Treasurer Sheldon, the two active men of the republican campaign committee in 1904, and others identified with that campaign.

Senator Penrose admitted that he received the check for $25,000 from John D. Archbold which he said was to be used to help roll up the 500,000 republican majority that Pennsylvania that year gave Roosevelt.

He further asserted that this was part of a $125,000 contribution for the republican campaign fund, $100,000 of which went to the National committee direct. Senator Penrose was a member of that committee and says the money was gratefully received by the treasurer of that committee.

Senator Penrose further says that Cornelius N. Bliss, the treasurer of the committee, came back to Mr. Archbold with a request for $150,000 more; that Mr. Archbold was willing but that his associates overruled him. He says Mr. Bliss told Mr. Archbold and "various members of the group known to be heavily interested in Standard Oil" that President Roosevelt had been advised of the $100,000 contribution "as had the chairman of the National committee, Mr. Cortelyou, and that the contribution was appreciated by both."

Cornelius Bliss is dead, and Chairman Cortelyou has said, under oath, before the senate investigating committee that he did not receive Standard Oil money.

Another interesting phase of Senator Penrose's statement is the charge that William Flinn, the Roosevelt leader in Pennsylvania, offered him and Israel W. Durham, a republican leader in Philadelphia, $1,000,000 and, if need be, $2,000,000 to let him come to the senate as the successor of the late Senator Quay. He says the offer was known to others. Israel Durham is also dead. The names of the others were not disclosed by Senator Penrose, but he cites a telegraphic appeal made by Flinn to John D. Archbold asking Archbold to intercede with Penrose and Durham in his (Flinn's) behalf, and Archbold's rather cheerless answer in cipher to Flinn's appeal.

... Long Jaunt for Geographers.

New York, Aug. 22.—Of a highly distinguished and representative character was the body of learned men that started from New York today on a transcontinental tour under the auspices of the American Geographical Society. The society has arranged the tour in celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of its founding and of the completion of its new home in this city.

The majority of the tourists are representatives of the universities and geographical societies of Europe. Sixteen countries are represented, among them Great Britain, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Belgium, Portugal and the Netherlands.

The trip across the continent and return will occupy two months, during which time the tourists will cover approximately 10,000 miles. After crossing the country to Seattle, Portland and San Francisco, visiting Yellowstone National Park on the way, the party will return through the Grand Canon and the Southern states reaching New York about the middle of October.

FARMERS UNION ADOPTS RESOLUTIONS

Shawnee, Okla., Aug. 22.—Resolutions adopted by the Oklahoma Farmers' union Wednesday demands the impeachment of Judge Daniel Thew Wright of the District of Columbia, for his decision in sending Samuel Gompers and John Mitchell, labor leaders, to jail; the adoption of a plan of road improvement that would tax the costs of such improvement on abutting farms; the adoption of a state tax law under which farm lands would be assessed at their actual value; the support by Oklahoma representatives in congress of the immigration bill recently passed by the senate, and two bills against gambling in cotton, grain and other farm products, and the deposit with the state treasurer of the proceeds of the sale of school lands.

A legislative committee of three was appointed to act with a similar committee of the State Federation of Labor to secure favorable legislation. The work of the convention is proceeding slowly.

Oklahoma Farmers union Wednesday night adopted the Southern States Cotton corporation plan of marketing the cotton crop.

Officers were elected as follows: Sam Taylor, Pontotoc county, president; Jack Barker, Canadian county, vice president; J. O. Butler, Comanche county, re-elected secretary. The members of the executive committee are W. F. Belden, Payne county; W. H. Harrison of Checotah and J. D. Hunter of Muskogee, Mr. Belden was elected delegate to the national convention.

WILSON CLUB WILL MEET MONDAY EVENING

Dr. M. W. Ligon, chairman of the Wilson-Marshall club, requests the News to announce that the club will hold its next meeting Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the city hall. He solemnly assured the News that he will not play hooky this time.

The chairman announces the appointment of the following committee to draft by-laws for the organization: J. Frank Lilly, W. D. Little, Geo. V. West, A. R. Sugg, R. M. Roddie, J. W. Bolen, J. W. Davis, J. P. Crawford, Robt. Wimbish, Miles Grigsby, C. T. Angel, W. H. Braley, Theodore Rogers. It is possible that some of the above have not yet enrolled as members of the club, but their politics is well known and they will enroll soon.

A lemon snow social will be given at Mrs. Haynes Thursday evening, Aug. 22, 1912. Lemon snow and homemade cake will be served. Admission 10 cents. 117-3t

MAN AT FORT WORTH GETS DEATH SENTENCE

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 21.—Paul Fowler, charged by indictment with the murder of Robert Knetsch July 1, was found guilty by the jury of the Forty-Eighth District Court and assessed the death penalty. The case will be appealed.

The jury, which was out all night, rendered its verdict at 9:30 o'clock this morning. The defendant winced when he heard it, and later said he did not fear death.

Soon after the jury had been thanked and discharged another was impaneled for the trial of Ernest Harrison, jointly charged with Fowler of having fired the shots which ended Knetsch's life. The new jury was sworn in during the afternoon and the trial proceeded, Harrison also is a young, black negro, somewhat resembling Fowler. The case will probably go to the jury by tomorrow night

FORMER ADA MAN STABBED AT DALLAS

Dallas, Aug. 20.—S. M. Kelly, clerk at the Imperial hotel, and P. T. Pegues, president of the Imperial Hotel company, were stabbed Tuesday morning by Charles Lafferty, a salesman, in the lobby of the hotel during a fight between Pegues and Lafferty. Kelly was injured trying to separate the combatants. According to Dr. J. E. Baldwin, Kelly was seriously hurt, the cut in his right leg above the knee covering eight inches and cutting two arteries. The muscles of the leg was cut in two. Dr. Baldwin states.

Pegues was cut on the inside of the left thigh, the wound being about three inches long and two inches deep. An artery was slashed, Dr. Baldwin states.

According to Lafferty, the quarrel rose over a bill. Lafferty says Pegues alleged he was obligated to pay a bill contracted by another man.

PROMINENT ADA MAN VISITS IN SHAWNEE

Dr. M. W. Ligon, who moved from Shawnee to Ada twelve years ago, was here yesterday visiting his devoted sister, Mrs. Jack Davis, and family, 432 W. 11th street. During Dr. Ligon's brief residence in Shawnee 1898-1900, he was associated with Dr. Willie in the practice of medicine and was ch. physician. Anybody acquainted with this unique but powerful minded doctor, as this reporter is, could feel the frown in advance with which he would read ought about himself, except by limited sentence, that he came and went—and he would avoid that much press publicity. But many a character, than this unusual Dr., with but a subdivision of his adaptable senses and poor proportion of his commendable accomplishments within his selected environment, has been many an author's salvation in hero conception. Dr. Ligon, but turned fifty, has retired from the practice of medicine, and just as well, for by it he would have never become rich or famous, although he early acquired and always enjoyed a powerful staying clientel. While in Shawnee yesterday, Dr. Ligon bought a considerable amount of alfalfa seed for plantage on one of his good Pontotoc county farms.—Shawnee News-Herald.

But a Whole Cotton Field has Great Value

A WHOLE field contains countless bolls. But before that field grew it had to be planted—and then to be looked after. It is the same with money. A single dollar is of little use. But if you plant money in the bank dollar by dollar it will grow in time to an amount of great value.

WHY WE HAVE SO FEW REALLY GREAT SPEAKERS

In the department called "The Interpreter's House," in the September American Magazine, appears the following:

"So far as the writer knows there are only two really fine speakers before large assemblages in either party. They are W. J. Bryan and Bourke Cochran, although Woodrow Wilson, of whose eloquence his friends speak with much enthusiasm, remains to be put to the great test of addressing huge and sometimes hostile crowds. At times Mr. Littleton, of New York, has shown signs of possessing the ancient gifts, but his early Southern training is too much for him and he is apparently incapable of resisting for more than five minutes, the lure of false metaphor, alliteration, and the other vices of trumphy oratory.

"The reason for the decline seems plain enough. Always in this country the lawyers held almost a monopoly of public speaking. Their practice at the bar kept them in constant training for their occasional appearances on the platform. Nowadays the best lawyers go seldom to court. They stay close in their offices, applying knowledge of the law and ingenuity in reasoning that would be thrown away on the average judge, to the building up and safe-guarding against large business undertakings in which they are partners as well as counsel. They have altogether neglected the art of addressing the crowd and have neither the time nor the inclination for the physical training which all great orators have found essential to the production of their calculated effects."

Mrs. Brown will open a Kindergarten Monday, Sept. 9th, at her home on 17th and Broadway. Rates $2.00 per month in advance. Phone 173. 118-6t

All committees appointed to aid in preparation for the Confederate Veterans Reunion are asked to meet at the city hall tomorrow (Friday) afternoon at 5 o'clock. As the time for the reunion is only a little over a week off, the different committees are getting anxious to have everything in perfect condition. So far all of them seem to have been doing their work in the most commendable manner.

A thousand badges have been ordered for the Veterans and visitors. It seems assured now that there will be at least that number of visitors to use them.

In his walks about town he saw nothing of Grace. She and Mrs. Poundberry and Captain Nat were still at the old home and no one save themselves knew what their plans might be. Yet oddly enough, Ellery was the first outsider to learn these plans and that from Nat himself.

He met the captain at the corner of the "Turnoff" one day late in August. He tried to make his bow seem cordial, but was painfully aware that it was not. Nat, however, seemed not to notice, but crossed the road and held out his hand.

"Well, Mr. Ellery," said Captain Nat, "I won't keep you. I see you're in a hurry. Just thought I'd run alongside a minute and say good-by. Don't know if I'll see you again before I sail."

"Before you sail? You—you are going away?"

"Yup. My owners have been after me for a good while, but I wouldn't leave home on account of dad's health. Now he's gone, I've got to be gettin' back to salt water again. My ship's been drydocked and overhauled and she's in New York now loadin' for Manila. It's a long voyage, even if I come back direct, which ain't likely. So I may not see the old town again for a couple of years. Take care of yourself, won't you? Good men, especially ministers, are scarce, and from what I hear about you I callate Trumet needs you."

"When are you going?"

"Last of next week, most likely."

"Will you—shall you go alone? Are you to be—to be—"

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF ADA. By P. A. Norris, President.

she said she had known ever since she was a girl.

"Mr. Pratt's a cousin of Thankful Payne over to home," volunteered Lavinia. "You know Thankful, Mr. Ellery."

Lavinia confided to her pastor that Mr. Pratt made the best shoes in Otable county. He could fit any kind of feet, she declared, and the minister ought to try him sometime. She added that he had money in the bank.

Spring once more; then summer. And now people were again speaking of Captain Nat Hammond. His ship was overdue, long overdue. Even in those days, when there were no cables and the telegraph was still something of a novelty, word of his arrival should have reached Trumet months before this. But it had not come, and did not. Before the summer was over, the wise heads of the retired skippers were shaking dubiously. Something had happened to the Sea Mist, something serious.

As the weeks and months went by without news of the missing vessel, this belief became almost a certainty. At the Come-Outer chapel, where Ezekiel Bassett now presided, prayers were offered for the son of their former leader.

One afternoon Keziah came into Ellery's study, where he was laboring with his next Sunday sermon, and sat down in the rocking-chair. She had been out and still wore her bonnet and shawl.

"John," she said, "I ask your pardon for disturbin' you. I wanted to ask if you knew Mrs. Prince was sick?"

"No. Is she? I'm awfully sorry. Nothing serious, I hope?"

"No, I guess not. Only she's got a cold and is kind of under the weather. I thought p'raps you'd like to run up and see her. She thinks the world and all of you, 'cause you was so good when she was distressed about her son. Poor old thing! She's had a hard time of it. I just heard that she was aillin' from Didama Rogers. Didama said she was all but dyin', so I knew she prob'ly had a little cold, or somethin'. If she was really very bad, I'd would have had her buried by this time, so's to be sure her news was ahead of anybody else's. I ain't been up there, but I met her t'other mornin'."

"Didama?"

"No; Mrs. Prince. She'd come down to see Grace."

"Oh."

"Yes. The old lady's been awful kind and sympathizin' since—since this new trouble. It reminds her of the loss of her own boy, I presume likely, and so she feels for Grace. John, what do they say around town about—about him?"

"Captain Hammond? Why, if you mean that they've all given up hope, I should hardly say that. Captain Mayo and Captain Daniels were speaking of it in my hearing the other day and they agreed that there was still a chance."

"A pretty slim one, though, they call'd it, didn't they?"

"Well, they were—were doubtful, of course. There was the possibility that he had been wrecked somewhere and hadn't been picked up. They cited several such cases. The South Pacific is full of islands where vessels seldom touch, and he and his crew may be on one of these."

"John," she answered, with a sigh, "sometimes I think you'd better get another housekeeper."

"What? Are you going to leave me? You?"

"Oh, 'twouldn't be because I wanted to. But it seems almost as if there was a kind of fate hangin' over me and that," she smiled faintly, "as if 'twas sort of catchin', as you might say. Everybody I ever cared for has had somethin' happen to 'em. My brother died; my—the man I married went to the dogs; then you and Grace."

"To leave you here? Why! well, I'm surprised."

"Godfrey's mighty! so be I. But she says she b'lieves she needs a change and there's church conference up there, you know, and she figgers that she ain't been to conference she don't know when. I s'pose you'll go, won't you, Mr. Ellery?"

"Probably."

Lavinia got herself elected a delegate and went, in company with Captain Elkanah, Mrs. Mayo, and others, to the conference. She was a faithful attendant at the meetings and seemed to be having a very good time. She introduced the minister to one Caleb Pratt, a resident of Sandwich, whom had to be miserable and I had to help make you so; I sent Nat away and he blamed me and—"

"No, no. He didn't blame you. He sent you word that he didn't. Aunt Keziah, you're my anchor to windward, as they say down here. If I lost you, goodness knows where I should drift. Don't you ever talk of leaving me again."

"Thank you, John. I'm glad you want me to stay. I won't leave yet awhile; never—unless I have to, John. I had another letter t'other day."

"You did? From—from that man?"

"Yup, from—" For a moment it seemed as if she were about to pronounce her husband's name, something she had never done in his presence; but if she thought of it, she changed her mind.

"From him," she said. "He wanted money, of course; he always does."

but that wasn't the worst. The letter was from England, and in it he wrote that he was gettin' sick of knockin' around and guessed he'd be for comin' to the States pretty soon and huntin' me up. Said what was the use of havin' an able-bodied wife if she couldn't give her husband a home."

"The scoundrel!"

"Yes, I know what he is, maybe full as well as you do. That's why I spoke of leavin' you. If that man comes to Trumet, I'll go, sure as death."

She hurried out of the room. Later, as the minister passed through the dining room on his way to the door, she spoke to him again.

"John," she said, "I didn't say what I meant to when I broke in on you just now. I meant to tell you about Grace. I knew you'd like to know and wouldn't ask. She's goin' away, Grace is."

"Going away?"

"Yup. She's goin' to stay with a relation of the Hammonds over in Connecticut for a spell. I coaxed her into it. Stayin' here at home with all this suspense and with Hannah Poundberry's tongue droppin' lamentations like kernels out of a corn sheller, is enough to kill a healthy batch of kittens with nine lives apiece."

Ellery took his hat from the peg and opened the door. His foot was on the step when Keziah spoke again.

"She—it don't mean nothin', John, except that she ain't so hard-hearted as maybe you might think—she's asked me about you 'most every time I've been there. She told me to take good care of you."

Ellery was thinking deeply as he walked up the main road on his way to Mrs. Prince's. Keziah's words were repeating themselves over and over in his brain. She had asked about him. She had not forgotten him altogether. Mrs. Prince was very glad to see him. He found her in the big armchair with the quilted back and the projecting "wings" at each side of her head. She was wrapped in a "Rising Sun" quilt which was a patchwork glory of red and crimson. A young girl, a neighbor, who was apparently acting in the dual capacity of nurse and housekeeper, admitted him to the old lady's presence. Mrs. Prince's good spirits were of short duration. Her conversation soon shifted to the loss of her son and she wept, using the corner of the quilt to wipe away her tears. "Eddie" had been her idol and, as she said, it was hard to believe what folks kept tellin' her, that it was God's will, and therefore all for the best.

"And there's Nat Hammond," continued Mrs. Prince. "A fine man—no better anywhere, even though his father was a Come-Outer—just goin' to be married and all, now they say he's drowned—why? Why was that necessary?"

Ellery could not reply. The old lady did not wait for him to do so. The mention of Captain Nat's name reminded her of other things.

"Poor Gracie!" she said. "It's terrible hard on her. I went down to see her two or three times afore I was took down with this backache. She's an awful nice girl. Land sakes alive! talk about angels! I s'num if she ain't comin' up the road this blessed minute."

John Ellery had risen. Now he seized his hat and moved hastily toward the door. Mrs. Prince called to him to remain, but he would not. However, her good-bys delayed him for a minute, and before he reached the yard gate Grace was opening it. They were face to face for the first time since they had parted in the grove, so many months before.

She was thinner and paler, he saw that. And dressed very quietly in black. She looked at him, as he stood before her in the path, and her cheeks flushed and her eyes fell.

"Er—Miss Van Horne," he stammered, "I merely wanted to tell you how deeply I—we all feel for you in your trouble. I—I am so sorry. I have heard so much of the captain from—"

"From Aunt Keziah? Yes, she was Nat's warmest friend."

"I know. Er—Mrs. Coffin tells me you are going away. I hope you may hear good news and soon. I shall think of you—of him—I want you to understand that I shall."

She held out her hand and he took it. He knew that his was trembling, but so, too, was hers. The hands fell apart. Grace entered the house and John Ellery went out at the gate.

CHAPTER XV.

In Which the Minister Boards the San Jose.

"Hey, Mr. Ellery!"

It was Captain Zeb Mayo who was calling. The captain sat in his antique chaise, drawn by the antique white horse, and was hailing the parsonage through a speaking trumpet formed by holding both his big hands before his mouth.

The minister and Mrs. Coffin, the former with a napkin in his hand, had emerged from the side door of the parsonage and now came hurrying down to the gate.

"Land of Goshen!" exclaimed the captain, "you don't mean to tell me you ain't done breakfast yet, and it after seven o'clock. Why, Mr. Ellery, I tell you: Em'lous Sparrow, the fish peddler, stepped up to our house a few minutes ago. He's just come down from the shanties over on the shore by the light—where the wreck was, you know—and he says there's a 'morphodite brig anchored three or four mile off and she's flyin' colors half mast and union down. They're gettin' a boat's crew together to go off to her and see what's the row. I'm goin' to drive over and I thought maybe you'd like to go along."

A moment later the minister, having donned his hat and coat, ran down the

SUMMER SKIN DISEASES

During the summer most persons are annoyed with pimples, boils, rashes, or eruptions, while others suffer more severely with Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, or some kindred skin disease. A perfect condition of the skin exists as long as the blood is normal, but when it becomes contaminated with humors and acids its supply of nutritive properties is greatly lessened and it becomes a sharp, acrid fluid which diseases instead of preserving the natural health and texture of the skin. The eruptions may be glossed over and inflammation reduced by the application of washes, cosmetics, salves, etc., but no skin affection can ever be permanently cured in this way; only pure blood can make healthy skin. S. S. S. cures Skin Diseases of every kind by neutralizing the acids and removing the humors from the blood. S. S. S. builds the circulation up to its normal strength, increases its nutritive powers and adds to its purity in every way. Then the skin instead of being irritated with acid humors and impurities, is nourished and healed by a plentiful supply of rich, pure blood. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice free.

walk and climbed into the chaise beside Captain Zeb. The white horse, stimulated into creaky trot by repeated slappings of the reins and roars to "Get under way!" and "Cast off!" moved along the sandy lane.

They found a group on the beach. A few fishermen, one or two lobstermen and wreckers, and the lightkeeper were gathered on the knoll by the lighthouse. They had a spyglass, and a good-sized dory was ready for launching.

"Where is she, Noah?" asked Captain Zeb of the lightkeeper.

"She's a brigantine, Zeb," observed the keeper, handing up the spyglass. "And flyin' the British colors. Look's if she might be one of them salt boats from Turk's Islands. But what she's doin' out there, anchored, with canvas lowered and showin' distress signals in fair weather like this, is more'n any of us can make out. She wan't there last evenin', though, and she is there now."
